Re: Notice of Ex Parte Communication, MB Docket Nos. 17-264, 17-105, 05-6; ET Docket No. 16-56

Dear Ms. Dortch:

On September 13, 2018, Erin Dozier, Patrick McFadden, Emmy Parsons and the undersigned of the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) met with Alison Nemeth Steger and Lauren Huston of the Office of Chairman Pai to discuss the above-referenced proceedings.

At the meeting, NAB reiterated its support for elimination of the Commission's rules requiring broadcast licensees to provide public notices of the filing of various license applications.¹ As detailed in our comments, these notices are superfluous and simply do not result in public comment.² Accordingly, the current rules place unnecessary burdens on broadcasters without providing a corresponding public interest benefit.

¹ See Comments of National Association of Broadcasters, MB Docket Nos. 17-264, 17-105, 05-6 (Dec. 29, 2017) (NAB Comments). See also Letter to Marlene H. Dortch, Secretary, FCC from Erin L. Dozier of NAB, MB Docket Nos. 17-264, 17-105, 05-6 (Apr. 13, 2018) (NAB April 13, 2018 Ex Parte); Letter to Marlene H. Dortch, Secretary, FCC from Erin L. Dozier, NAB, MB Docket Nos. 17-264, 17-105, 05-6 (Mar. 5, 2018) (NAB March 5, 2018 Ex Parte).

² NAB Comments at 8-9. NAB reviewed the 389 full power television license renewal applications filed in 2012 using the FCC's Consolidated Database System and found that only six applications – or 1.5 percent – were the subject of any public comment (drawing seven total filings). See Petition to Deny License Renewals of Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington, FCC File Nos. BRC DT-20120531AKE/AKK/AJL (Aug. 22, 2012); Letter from Bradley Snow re: FCC File Nos. Gordon Bengston re: FCC File No. BRC DT-20120530AIF (May 16, 2012); Letter from Herbert Max Bradley re: FCC File No. BRC DT-

We stated that, as an alternative to eliminating broadcaster-generated notices, NAB has urged the FCC to eliminate its newspaper notice requirements and permit broadcasters to make brief on-air announcements that refer audiences to websites with additional information.³ In designing an online notice standard, the Commission could rely on its successful adoption of online disclosure requirements for material terms relating to broadcast contests.⁴ We observed that although a small number of licensees may be unable to provide on-air announcements because they don't originate programming (i.e., translators, boosters, new stations and stations changing community of license), the record in this proceeding cannot support retention of the print newspaper requirement with regard to any stations or applications.⁵ Stations that cannot generate on-air notices should either be permitted to place notices online or be exempt from the requirement.

Finally, NAB urged the Commission to conclude the white spaces automatic geolocation proceeding promptly, to ensure that the TV white spaces database functions as intended.⁶

Respectfully submitted,

20120730AFS (Aug. 5, 2012) (Bradley Letter). Those who did file likely did not rely on broadcaster-generated notices to learn of the applications (e.g., filings by a Washington, D.C.-based watchdog group, a major cable provider, and a mayor supporting the cable operator's position). Even comments filed by the general public appear to rely on Internet information sources. Of the four comments filed by individuals, two included references to the FCC file numbers associated with the applications, rather than merely identifying the stations' call letters (Snow Letter, Terpstra Letter), and one included a printed page from the FCC's website within instructions on how to file petitions to deny, informal objections and comments (Bradley Letter). Thus, to the extent that filers are not corporations or non-profit organizations with Washington, D.C. offices staffed by attorneys/lobbyists who frequently appear before the FCC and other government entities, such filers also are comfortable using the FCC's website to learn about and address broadcast applications.
